Many major countries have something they are famous for: France is famous for fromage, England for the Royal Family etc, but small number of people seems to be interested in visiting minor countries, such as Serbia, which is why I want to show them how much they are missing.

Foremost, Serbia is teeming with historical sites. As the country is over two millenniums old, in most of the cities you can find many constructional masterpieces: from monuments dating back to the Roman Empire to the monasteries of the Nemanjić dynasty.

Furthermore, this country is well known for the large variety of dishes, its national cuisine offers. Karadjordje's steak, burger, pihtija and sarma are some of the finest and most appetizing meals. Not only to be found nearby, but worldwide and most of the newcomers in Serbia accolade that these are the most delicious dishes they have ever tried.

To sum up, there are numerous reasons for visiting Serbia, one of the most interesting and fascinating states around the globe, which is by many exemplary country for building up relationships and going out with your friends.
