

In a perfect world

The world can be a terrible place filled with violence, hunger, poverty... But what if the world were to be a perfect place? Well, it would probably look like...

A distopian city filled with nature, overgrown plants, practically an oxygen sanctuary. No more nuclear power, only solar energy to power your favorite news program. Say goodbye to gasoline, bicycles are the new trend. Nature can come to us, and we can come to nature. Happiness will be mandatory, no sadness in our world. Depression, what's that? I only know optimism.

This luxurious life is very simple to get, you just need to follow some simple steps. Destroy all firearms, solve every ongoing war, stop global warming and crimes. It's as easy as one, two, three!

Try our perfect lifestyle now. Side-effects may include wild animal attacks, poisonous infections, complete darkness everywhere after sundown and overpopulation rates which have skyrocketed.

In conclusion, there can be no perfect life, there is always something in the way of it. Just live life to the fullest and you can create your perfect world.

Maša Milošević, B2
Penguin English, Jagodina