

In a Perfect World

The world we live in today is far from perfect. We read every day about war, terrorism, genocide, violence, hatred, and sorrow. It is our natural human instinct to believe that things are going to get better but it seems that each day the world actually gets worse.

In a perfect world, each child would be born into a household where everything would be taken care of. Each child would be brought up in a healthy living environment. When a child would finish school, he or she would only have to work in their career to get extras in life like luxuries and additional comforts. When someone would decide to settle down and start a family, they would have no difficulty in finding a perfect spouse or taking care of their basic needs. In a perfect world, there would only be joy and pleasure.

But imperfection allows us to advance our small corner of the world. It's essential. There is nothing perfect in this world, but the world can be made better by our own actions. What is perfection anyway?

Nenad Marinkovic, B2
Centar Britannica Nis