Review

The series I am watching right now is a Spanish show about policemen.

The main characters in the show are Paco, Lucas and Mariano.

Of course, there are a lot of other characters besides them who are mostly their relatives.

There is a lot of drama going on but with a big amount of humor and comedy. It can make you cry but it mostly makes you laugh, until you start crying.

At first I didn't like it but then I realized I underestimated it. I watched an episode and got addicted. I was attracted by a certain character and its conflict.

I recommend it to others because of the brilliant actors and the doze of reality that they bring to the show together with the interesting story that will keep you watching.
