Dear diary,

Something really amazing happened to me the other day! I...won the lottery!
I was coming back from a party and it was pretty late, so there weren't any buses and I had to walk home.

When I was halfway home I accidentally brushed up against a man who was wearing a black hoodie. He dropped something. I bent down to pick it up and started apologizing, but when I turned to face him, he was gone. I looked at the thing he dropped and was really surprised to find out that it was a lottery ticket. Since I watch a lot of TV I figured I should keep it, and couple days later, I was rich. The man who dropped the ticket didn't contact me at all. I'm wondering if I can keep the money. What do you think?
