The fortune-teller

The fortune-teller looked at the crystal ball and told me some interesting things about my future. Let me tell you some of them.

The first thing she told me was that I would be very rich and a better person than I am now. I would be patient, calm and I would try to help everyone. The whole world would love me. The second thing she told me was that I would have a husband who would love me and I would love him too. And the third thing was that my husband and I would die on the same day.

Here we are now, me and my husband side by side in a turned-over Mercedes Benz that crashed off the road in the Valley of Death.
