

Free time activities by Sava and Bosko

Sometimes, we just like to wander away from commitments and reality. For that, we rely on games. They are helpful in numerous ways.

Firstly, treating ill people by enhancing their reflexes and motor skills. They also improve communication and teamwork by giving you an option to play and interact with other people. A popular game that gives you an option to play with other players is League of Legends. It has millions of players active every day, which means you always have a chance to interact with someone and get to know new people.

However, there are also downsides of sitting at a gaming console all day. Without proper exercise, you can get lazy and out of shape relatively quickly, and that is bad for your health.

We recommend doing what we do: combining computer games and outdoor activities, such as football. About that, in the next paragraph.

As mentioned in the previous paragraph, sport activity is very important in our lives. We decided to opt for football because it is the most popular sport in the world. In addition to that, it is most commonly played after school. It is easy for us because we only need a ball and a couple of players. A really good side of football is that we can make friends with new people and stay fit at the same time. What virtual and real life games have in common is that they help us build team spirit, which overall increases our efficiency in a group, thus leading to greater results.

Great Fun
